Our Work

The Center for Law and Justice (CFLJ), founded in 1985 by Dr. Alice P. Green, advocates for marginalized communities and promotes social change in New York's Capital Region. For over 30 years, CFLJ has addressed systemic inequities, supported those impacted by the criminal justice system, and uplifted low-income communities.

Our Programs

Education and Advocacy

Through our Education and Advocacy Program our primary goal is to educate individuals and families regarding their rights and available resources. Through workshops, forums, and community outreach, we provide accessible, accurate, and actionable information that equips people with the tools they need to advocate for themselves and their communities. By fostering awareness and understanding, CFLJ aims to build a better informed, empowered, and equitable society.

Community Resource Navigation (CRN)

The CRN Program ensures clients are connected to resources that will help them in their unique situations, whether that be legal services, housing, food pantries, support with healthcare access, or another issue. We take a holistic approach to individuals' needs, looking at ways to both address immediate issues and set them up for long-term success.

OUR MISSION

The Center for Law and Justice envisions a peaceful, just, and compassionate community. Through advocacy, education, and empowerment, the Center promotes equitable access to essential community resources, as well as equal justice for all within the civil and criminal justice systems.
